At the Prairie Crossing Farm, we have a number of farmers who offer fresh, healthy, organic food for your delight. With the exception of Sandhill Organics, these farms are members of the Prairie Crossing Farm Business Development Center (PCFBDC), a business incubator for beginning farmers. Each of these producers offers their product through different channels; participation in CSAs, direct sales, or sales at the Station Square Farm Market.

MEET OUR FARMERS

SANDHILL ORGANICS (Matt & Peg Sheaffer)

We began farming in Southern Wisconsin in the spring of 2000 with little more than a pitchfork and a wheelbarrow. With the help of friends and family, Sandhill Organics has become a successful family farm operating on just over 40 acres. We grow a wide range of vegetables, herbs and flowers. Our farm is certified organic by Midwest Organic Services Association.

WILD GOOSE FARM (Meg Runyan)

Wild Goose Farm is a small organic vegetable farm. Our mission is to be good stewards of the land while building a strong community through the growth and sales of our high quality, naturally grown vegetables and herbs. We seek to connect people with a farmer, each other, and the land. We grow a wide variety of produce and sell to the community through a pre-order plant sale, a CSA program (community supported agriculture) and farmers markets. All our produce is naturally grown and our farm is certified organic through the Midwest Organic Services Association.

TORPLAND FARM (Ann & Richard Torp)

We are new farmers committed to healing our food system and building community by providing freshly picked produce to our neighbors. In 2010, we began farming a half-acre of land under the name Torps' Half acre Harvest. We are in our first season at Prairie Crossing Farm on one acre and have changed our name to Torpland Farm. This is in honor of our escape cabin up North, which friends have dubbed, "Torpland." Coincidentally, in Scandinavian languages, a "torp" is a small leased farm area. This year we are encouraging people to eat the "Five Colors for Health" way and are selling our produce through a CSA program.

PRAIRIE CROSSING FARM

RADICAL ROOT FARM (Alex Needham & Alison Parker)

We are a small organic vegetable farm. This is our third year, our second at Prairie Crossing. We love food and believe in the mission of having more localized, ecologically grown agriculture. We are a husband and wife team who believe passionately in the art of sustainable and ecological growing of food. We are firm environmentalists and food justice advocates. We strive to grow healthy food that tastes better and is more nutritious than anything you'll find that's been flown in to a grocery store. Our farm is certified organic.

MIDNIGHT SUN FARM (Nicholas Choate-Batchelder)

Midnight Sun Organics is certified organic by Midwest Organic Services Association. 2011 marks the second year of our operations for Midnight Sun Organics. We grow a wide variety of produce. We also provide fresh organic eggs from our free-range hens, as well as honey from our beehives and pasture raised, organically fed chickens and turkeys. Our products are available at various farmers markets and via a CSA subscription.
